News and podcasts from NPR and member stations around the country, available on Windows, Android and iOS devices. It's all you need to stay informed. If you are interested in listening to the news, published stories, and local station broadcasts, as well as podcasts from the US, NPR One is a free-of-cost application that allows access, from your desktop, to all the aforementioned streaming options. The importance of accessing news directly from the source Some local press agencies, local news in your country may offer truncated or biased information, or even worse, they may deliberately misinform their listeners. Although sad, in the modern world, social media, streaming platforms, and other source news sometimes can hardly keep up with new and ingenious ways false information manages to slip and mix with true, valid pieces of data. Plus, even if you are not the victim of deliberate misinformation, digital news is still broadcasted on mediated communication channels, which sometimes can alter the original meaning of a story, by not taking into account things like the tone of voice of the emitter, their body language or facial expressions, and other factors. A multi-platform service for listening to US news As a result of the difficulty to get access to information that is as accurate as possible, NPR One can deliver a solution for those who want to listen to news from different location stations in the US. Whether you are an American or someone simply interested in listening to the news, online stories from a particular region, radio streaming, or podcasts, NPR One will help you achieve that. The service is available on desktop, Amazon, and for Android and iOS as well. The Windows application and its performance The tool for PC is simplistic and easy to use. The tool lets you log in with an account of your choice, and you can change the station location from the account area. Then, you can select a story, piece of news, or online streaming source, listen to it, share it, or skip it. When browsing through different locations, there are suggestions based on your input. For example, for user input like 'Florida,' the search can return results like 'Orlando, FL,' 'Jacksonville, FL,' 'Tampa, FL,' etc. All things considered, NPR One is a useful application as it can run in the background and gives you access to pieces of information you can filter.
